The seller is an American who has lived in Japan for 20 years. The property, with a history going back to 1872, is located in a prime location in downtown Manhattan, in the heart of the Financial District. It boasts 12,000 square feet of contiguous, high-ceilinged rooms, along with two buildings containing social, dining, and apartment space. The Club has been in continuous operation since the 1890s, with notable members including Michael Hench, a photographer who produced the U.S. Army's first major portraits of soldiers, and Oscar Wilde's biographer, Richard Ellmann. The interior will be re-configured by a renowned New York designer, as well as the office that manages the Club. No offer has yet been made. The seller has been advertising the property in publications that cater to affluent Japanese businesspeople, as well as in real estate listings. Interested parties are welcome to schedule a viewing by contacting the listing agent. The first floor contains a common entryway, formal dining room, parlor, sitting room, and a breakfast room that is generally used as a study, although the seller will consider using it as a TV room. The second floor has the large grand ballroom, a living room, and four guest bedrooms. The Club is known for its Victorian charm, and is a great environment for private events. Balzac's home in Paris is a simple two-story apartment on the Boulevard Montmartre. The home features 54b84cb42d
