~~ An Action RPG game created using the Unreal Development Kit version 4.10.1. ~~ This application requires the UDK engine. For more information, please refer to 1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a channel allocation method and a related apparatus, and more particularly, to a channel allocation method which is capable of dynamically allocating resources in a random access point for a self-adaptive modulation and coding technology for use within a mobile communication system and a related apparatus. 2. Description of the Prior Art In the prior art, the wireless communication system generally employs the channel allocation technology for balancing channel quality with resource cost. As shown in FIG. 1, the channel allocation technology may be performed in a mobile wireless communication system 100, which includes a base station 104 and one or more mobile units 102. The mobile wireless communication system 100 transmits a control signal from the base station 104 through a channel 106, and transmits data from one of the mobile units 102 to the base station 104 through another channel 108. The base station 104 allocates the channels 106 and 108 to the mobile units 102, for a purpose of channel information transmission and data transmission. Please refer to FIG. 1 again. As is shown in FIG. 1, the mobile wireless communication system 100 further includes a resource management component 110, a modulation component 112, and a code rate component 114. The resource management component 110 allocates the channels 106 and 108 to the mobile units 102 according to the channel allocation technology. The modulation component 112 converts the channel allocation information from the resource management component 110 into the respective data for transmission through the channels 106 and 108. The code rate component 114 determines whether the data after modulation needs to be encoded or not. As is described above, the base station 104 allocates the channel 106 to the mobile unit 102 first, and allocates the channel 108 to the mobile unit 102 second, wherein the channel 106 and the channel 108 which are allocated to the mobile unit 102 are required to be continuous. Please refer to FIG. 2. As is shown in FIG. 2, the mobile wireless communication system 100 further includes a plurality of base stations 200a and 200b, and a plurality of mobile units 202a and 202b which are served by the base stations 200a and 200b, respectively. In addition, the base stations 200a and 200b allocate

Landers Quake Off US Coast Strikes 8 Photos September

27, 2008 by Brian Thomas, Associated Press DURHAM,

N.C. (AP) -- Powerful M=5.3 temblor strikes east of here

Sept. 26 started a cascade of up to 30 small aftershocks.

"That may go on for weeks," said Seismologist Harry

Wood at the U.S. Geological Survey. A survey of the damage where more than 4,500 homes have been destroyed by Saturday's quake was under way Sunday.

"It's possible we may find damage somewhere else down the line," said University of North Carolina Geologist

Robert King. Related Content Just three dozen people are missing and no one knows if they are dead. The worst damage was near Puerto Villarica, in Colombia. A small building collapsed, flooding the village. People there were out of town and feared to come home, said one resident who did not give his name. "I didn't know if it would happen," said a woman in Puerto Villarica, home for the past 20 years. "I was praying as a last measure, and so it happened." On the U.S. East Coast, aftershocks struck as far north as New York and as far south as the Bahamas on Saturday, rattling nerves. At least 150 people died as a result of an earthquake in Colombia on Sept. 8. Before then, no major temblor had hit the U.S. in five years. The U.S. Geological Survey said there were only three magnitude-5.3 quakes in the country since March 12, 2006. But the Baja California quake was a megathrust earthquake, caused by where North and South America drift away from each other. It was part of an undersea pileup
