Income tax is not an insignificant portion of your income because this is where your after-tax income gets divvied up. From there, you'll have to figure out the best way to pay for your living expenses and build a nest egg. Income tax planning takes a multidimensional approach. Income tax planning is all about avoiding and/or minimizing tax liabilities. Here are the four main points of income tax planning: Tax Planning You don't have to pay taxes on the first $22,400 of your income. This is called the exemption amount. You're also exempt from taxes on the first $24,100 of your interest. This is called the exemption on interest. There's also a $6,550 dollar limit that you may use on your itemized deductions like mortgage interest, real estate taxes, state taxes and, occasionally, charitable deductions. These are called itemized deductions. Tax-Free Assets You can save up to $15,000 in a pretax IRA. You can put up to $5,000 in a traditional IRA. You can also save up to $22,000 in an SEP-IRA. An SEP-IRA is similar to a traditional IRA, however it's meant for people who work in a corporation. You can put up to $5,000 in a SEP IRA. You can also put up to $15,000 in a Section 1802 Account. This is a tax-free savings plan. This type of account allows you to save assets that are not held under a traditional IRA or a SEP IRA. This is often used to save money that is still under the exemption. When determining how much money you can spend before you pay taxes, you must also look at the amount of money you have available. For instance, if your tax liability is at a $500 per
